Enhancing health, Evolving care

Ten years since obesity became a National Health Priority Area, it is an inconvenient truth that obesity is still on the rise, driven by overconsumption and under activity, environmental, societal and other factors. Likewise for type 2 diabetes, cardiovascular disease and dementia. Ironically, while genetic predisposition is usually considered to be less predictive of disease than 'lifestyle', the factors that create ill health also influence gene expression, affecting not only disease progression and prognosis, but the health of future generations.

Enhancing health, Evolving care

The Australasian Society of Lifestyle Medicine (ASLM) and partner organisations are proud to invite you to attend the third international conference on Lifestyle Medicine in science, health policy and clinical practice to be held in Australasia.

With not one, but three leading lights of Lifestyle Medicine to guide you through the feast of options, our Masters of Ceremonies, Drs Caroline West, Darren Morton and Joanna McMillan will keep you moving, laughing, singing & dancing!

The conference features a 'how to' multidisciplinary clinical focus designed for doctors and allied health practitioners, blended with an exploration of determinants and systemic issues for public health physicians and health policy professionals. Complimented by scientific abstracts integrated into the main program.

An impressive line-up of leaders in medicine, science and health policy from Australia, New Zealand, Asia, Europe and the Americas will once again explore the conference themes, with a focus on translational research and innovation in practice.

Lifestyle Medicine promotes prevention, early intervention, self-management, modification, and dare we say it, even regression of many chronic conditions.

Let us re-inspire your practice at this special event.

Dr Sam Manger
MBBS, BSC, FRACGP, FASLM
President, ASLM
